Philosophy

Our curriculum is based on a philosophy that children develop to their fullest emotionally, cognitive, socially and physically in an environment of love, acceptance and praise. At Alphabet Acres, children will develop self-confidence and respect of others. Our hope as early childhood educators is to balance the needs of your child and your family with the needs of the group and our community.

We believe that for your child to be successful, we must work together in a partnership. This partnership will involve the child, the teacher, the staff and the family.

Our educational philosophy is founded on the idea that the young child learns through active play and exploration of their environment. At Alphabet Acres, our staff works hard to provide an age appropriate environment that challenges your child and facilitates their expression through play.

Communication is vital for your child's success. We value the relationship between parent, teacher and child and support an open line of communication and respect for one another.

Finally, we feel that your child will excel when there is collaboration between parents and teachers. We are committed to providing an environment consisting of limits and structure in a predictable consistent setting. By creating a challenging atmosphere, we allow children the freedom to explore and fabricate their own ideas.
